www.vinnyjones.com

My work comes from a desire to have the audience experience the story of another. I have explored this fascination as a performer and collaborative maker in Australia and as a light designer in the Netherlands, specializing in site-specific work and work in which light plays a dramaturgical role. My current work evolved from research undertaken during the MFA Scenography, exploring light as a sensory medium that shapes the relationship between the audience and a performative work. Intrinsic to my artistic vision is a methodology I am calling sensory scenography. Rather than describe or illustrate a situation, I seek to create the experience of that situation, using sensory stimulus to provoke physiological and behavioural effects that direct the body and mind to specific responses and memories. My work bases itself on the recognition that it is through the whole sensing body that we perceive, experience and are connected to the world. It aims to create space for different ways of perceiving and experiencing stories that reconnect to the profound, embodied understanding employed in sensory perception. I am exploring atmospheric installations that use compositions of sensory stimulus to manifest, as physical experience, questions about our relationship with the world we live in and our connections with each other. I hope the experience of another's sensory world will create a connection with their story. A desire to put the audience's experience at the heart of my work, to create empathy and understanding through shared experiences motivates my artistic practice.

"Her work confronts ones perception of the self, both inward and outward in a surreal experience of the fluidity of time and space, like moods that come and go, having great impact on our perception of reality but at the same time are transitory in nature, ungraspable.... I felt the totality of the space, the experience of spending time....Back on the street, I felt like a stranger in my own city"
Joris Weijdom, University of the Arts, Utrecht.

"Mesmerizing. I felt like I was walking in your memory."
Hadassa Smit, SoAP
